Accounting Finance and Governance Review is pleased to announce a special issue dedicated to interdisciplinary perspectives on accounting and social change. Current global challenges highlight the existence of, and need for positive, social change. We invite authors to submit work which draws on the perspectives of other disciplines to highlight possibilities for, and enlightening conceptions of, accounting and social change. More broadly, the interface of accounting with the humanities and social sciences presents a potentially rich area of study with significant societal implications.

In this special issue, we call for contributions that examine and explore social change and the perspectives of other disciplines in an accounting context, and which seek to deepen and expand our understanding of their meaning and significance. Topics for this issue include, but are not limited to the following:

- How accounting may serve or enable social change
- Historical accounts of social change
- The impact of accounting technologies and procedures on social change
- Education in accounting and social change
- The significance of social change to the accounting profession
- New understandings of accounting and social change emerging from the perspectives of other disciplines
- Situated interdisciplinary explorations of social change and accounting in specific countries or contexts.

Potential contributors are encouraged to interpret this theme broadly, yet critically, using diverse theoretical and methodological perspectives in a wide array of settings.

This Special Issue is associated with the 2nd CSEAR Ireland Conference to be held in Limerick from October 31 to November 2, 2018, hosted by the Kemmy Business School at University of Limerick. Authors wishing to present their work here should submit a 300-word abstract to CSEARIreland@ul.ie by: August 15, 2018. Please indicate whether or not you intend your paper to be developed for the special issue. Note that participation in the conference is not a precondition for consideration for the special issue, nor does acceptance at the conference imply acceptance in the journal – as the two processes are independent of one another.

Full paper submissions must be in accordance with AFGR’s Guide for authors and will be subject to a double-blind review process. Authors should submit full papers to the journal by email to matthew.sorola@ul.ie by: February 3, 2019.

Guest Editors:
- Martin Kelly, Queen’s Management School, Queen’s University Belfast; martin.kelly@qub.ac.uk
- Matthew Sorola, Kemmy Business School, University of Limerick; matthew.sorola@ul.ie
- Lorna Stevenson, School of Management, University of St Andrews, Scotland; lorna.stevenson@st-andrews.ac.uk

Important Dates:
- Abstract submission to the 2nd CSEAR Ireland conference: August 15, 2018
- Dates of the 2nd CSEAR Ireland conference: October 31 to November 2, 2018
- Full paper submission to the Special Issue: February 3, 2019.