

The Chairperson and Council of the Irish Association for Industrial Relations have pleasure in inviting you to attend the 42nd. Countess Markievicz Memorial Lecture

by

Dr. Brian Hanley

Research Fellow in Irish History, The University of Edinburgh

“The Conscription crisis 1918: the nail in the coffin?”

Dublin Institute of Technology, Aungier Street, Room TBA

Friday, November 23, 2018, 1400 – 1500 hours

Light Refreshments served at 13:30 hours

With support from the Workplace Relations Commission

Biography

Dr. Hanley is a graduate of Trinity College Dublin. He has lectured in history at St. Patrick's College, Drumcondra, the National University of Ireland: Maynooth, Trinity College Dublin, the University of Liverpool, Queens University Belfast, University College Dublin, the Mater Dei Institute of Education and the National College of Ireland. He was Historian in Residence at Dublin City Library and Archives from July-August 2015 researching the 1916 exhibition 'Citizens in Conflict', and was involved in collecting oral histories as part of the No. 14 Henrietta Street Dublin Tenement Museum project. He was chief researcher on the UCD Archives project 'The Finest Men Alive' and was Area Historian for Dublin City Council and Archives, based at Pearse Street, during 2017. He also worked as guide for Historical Insights Ltd for many years.