

Erasmus-Programme of the Institute of Psychology University of Würzburg (Germany)

The Study of Psychology deals with the scientific study of human thoughts, feelings and behaviour. Our department is known for its scientific, experimental psychological orientation. Studying Psychology in Würzburg means studying in small classes and experiencing a close and friendly relationship between teachers and students. We have 30 partner institutes throughout Europe and there are currently about 20 international students at our institute.

Study Programme

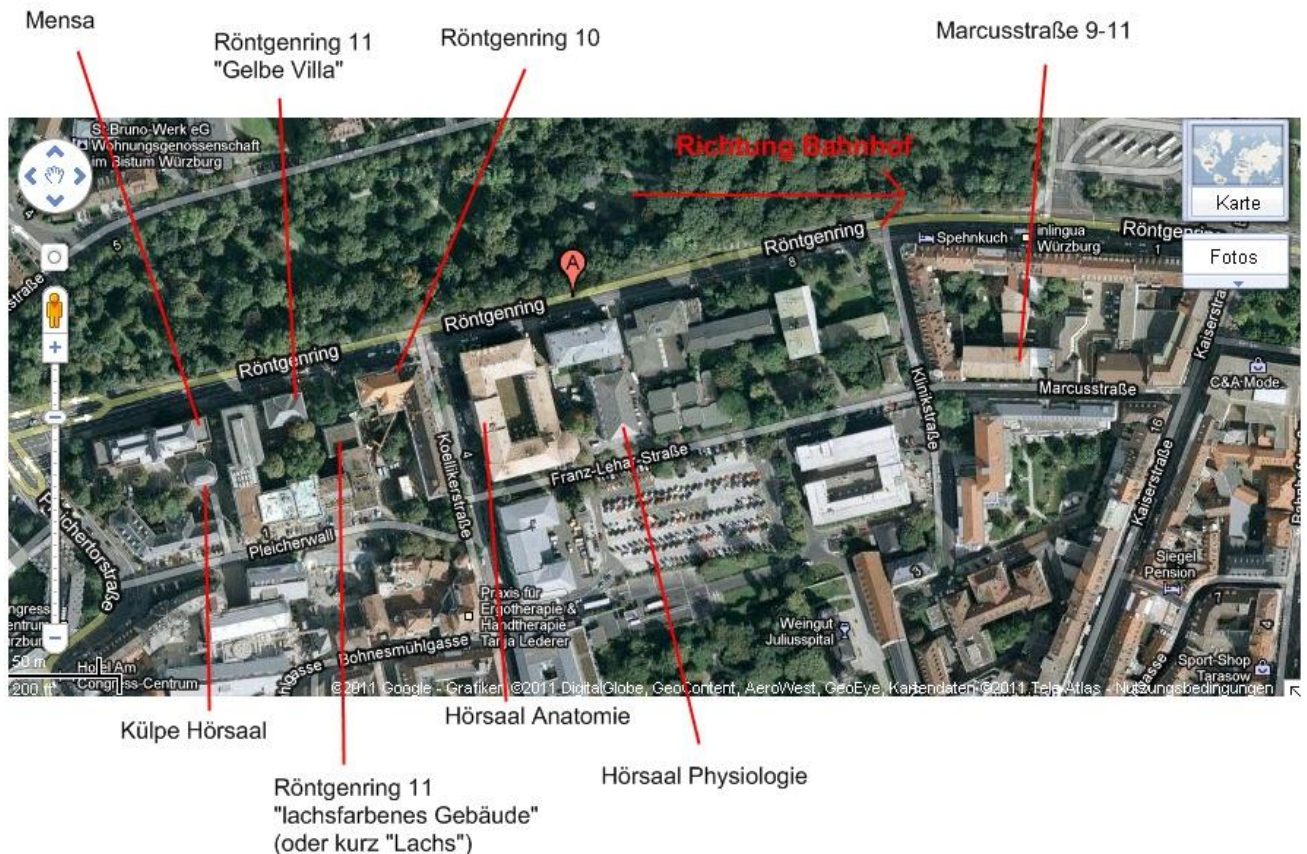

You can visit the broad study programme in German language or attend one of the courses that are held completely or partly in English language. Currently we have 15 courses with approx. 40 ECTS that are especially open to international students. The complete study programme for bachelor and master students includes 300 ECTS in total, from which you can freely choose.

Tutoring

Coming to Würzburg, you will get tutoring from the international office on studying and living in Würzburg, and more specific, there is an additional tutoring from the Institute of Psychology. The Erasmus Coordinator and students will help you in choosing courses and organizing your study.

The buildings of the Institute of Psychology

The buildings where you will have your seminars and readings are in walking distance of each other. In our main building “ Röntgenring 10” you will also find a small library in the basement, as well as the student cafeteria “ Mensa” just around the corner.

Activities that help you get established in Würzburg

Both the international office and our Erasmus coordinator and his assistant organize gatherings and other free activities to bring German and international students together and help our guests to get to know our Psychology Institute. Every semester in the week before the courses start there is an informal gathering where you are shown around our buildings and can get to know the other Erasmus students at the Psychology Institute. To make it easier for everyone to stay in touch we established a monthly “Erasmus table” in changing locations (date and time are announced in our Facebook group) in order to both show you what Würzburg has to offer and to bring our locals and the guest students together in a cozy atmosphere.

Attending a German language course

Our Institute for Languages offers German courses for all levels in which you can participate for free and through the exams achieve the respective CEFR levels (A1-C2). Signing up works through the student portal “sb@home” like the other courses.

Further Information

Please have a look at the Erasmus information page of the Institute of Psychology:

Information for incoming students

http://www.i4.psychologie.uni-wuerzburg.de/erasmus/incoming_students/

Contact to other students within the Erasmus Programme in Würzburg

<https://www.facebook.com/groups/1576530502613170/>

Questions? You can ask

PD Dr. Wolfgang Lenhard

Wittelsbacherplatz 1

Room 02.130

Lehrstuhl Psychologie IV

97074 Würzburg

Mail: erasmus@psychologie.uni-wuerzburg.de

Phone: 0931 31 89791

FAX: 0931 31 84891

Office Hours: Friday, 10 - 12