Welcome to Université Paris Diderot

Université Paris Diderot is the only multi-disciplinary university at the heart of Paris, and can offer a wide range of courses and research options in 5 subject areas:

- the arts, literature and languages
- · law, economics and management
- human and social sciences
- sciences, technology, health
- medicine, odontology

A bit of background

1970: After the events of May 68, and in the context of the application of the Faure law, the prestigious University of Paris was divided into 13 independent universities.

Paris 7 was unique in that the university could already offer a fairly wide range of courses in several subject areas: Human sciences, Sciences and Health, etc.

1994: Paris 7 opted for Denis Diderot, the great philosopher of the Enlightenment (a remarkably open-minded and tolerant man, creator of l'Encyclopédie), as its emblematic figure to reinforce and promote its multi-disciplinary projects. Paris 7 university then adopted the name "Paris 7 - Denis Diderot" university.

2007: Paris 7 moved from its initial site, Jussieu campus in the Latin district of Paris 5, to the current site in Paris Left Bank in the south east of the French capital city. The move near to the Bibliothèque Nationale de France (BNF - National French Library) provided Université Paris Diderot with new facilities and boosted its ambitions.

Since April 2009: Université Paris Diderot is part of the PRES (Pôle de recherche et d'enseignement supérieur - Cluster for research and higher education) "Sorbonne Paris Cité", a consortium which includes 4 universities and 4 leading French sites: Sorbonne Nouvelle (Paris 3), Paris Descartes (Paris 5), Paris Diderot (Paris 7), Villetaneuse (Paris 13), the IPGP (Institute of Earth Physics of Paris), the INALCO (Institut national des langues et civilisations orientales - National institute of eastern languages and civilisations), the Institute of Political Sciences of Paris and the EHESP (Ecole des Hautes Etudes en Santé Publique - Higher school of public health studies).

This strategic partnership will reinforce the effectiveness and appeal of the French research and higher education system by sharing the skills of the partners.

Higher education reform

The higher education reform establishing Degree-, Masters- and Doctorate- level qualifications was launched to standardise university qualifications in Europe and encourage student mobility. University studies are now broken down into 3 levels: Degrees, Masters and Doctorates. One year is worth 60 credits. Students need 180 credits to obtain a degree, 120 credits to obtain a masters and 180 credits to obtain a Doctorate.

The European Credit Transfer System (ECTS)

Université Paris Diderot has adopted the European Credit Transfer System (ECTS). According to this system, a full-time student will obtain 60 credits for an academic year.

Each module represents a certain number of ECTS credits; you will obtain complete information on the credits assigned for each module from the academic body organising the module. The number of ECTS credits is calculated based on a volume of hours, classes and personal study. ECTS credits can be awarded for an internship or period abroad, for example, depending on the specific procedure for each course.

Credits represent international academic recognition for studies. Credits can be:

- transferred within France and Europe, for students spending part of their course abroad or changing course before completing their qualification;
- used, as they are definitively acquired, regardless of the length of the studies of the student.

ECTS Grade Definition

- A EXCELLENT Remarkable result, with only a few minor errors
- B VERY GOOD Above-average result, but with a few mistakes
- C GOOD Generally good work, with some significant errors
- D SATISFACTORY Acceptable, but with substantial shortfallings
- E PASS The result meets minimum criteria
- FX FAIL Additional work is required before credits can be accorded
- F FAIL Considerable additional work is required

An intensive course in French language and culture (SILC) is organised for European and international students on an exchange programme at Université Paris Diderot in the context of the European summer campus school.

This intensive course is organised early in each semester — September and January — for students on exchange programmes. It includes language and cultural classes as well as cultural trips.

The aim is to improve the introduction and integration of students within the University, and to prepare them for their future studies in good conditions.

This intensive course is intended to provide a great opportunity to simplify immersion, create social links and gain the trust of the students while improving their French and ensuring they pass their modules at our University.

Ongoing classes during the semester

Ongoing classes during the semester include 4 levels, ranging from beginners (A2) to advanced (C1). Students can take French classes and/or a workshop each semester (2 hours or 4 hours each week):

- French language classes (A2 C1): general vocabulary, grammar;
- workshops: oral understanding and speaking (B1/B2), written skills (B1/B2 and C1), civilisation (B1/B2), phonetics (B2/C1), vocabulary (B2/C1).

Continuous assessment applies for ongoing classes during the semester. Credits are given for these ongoing classes each semester in the same way as other modules taught at Université Paris Diderot: 3 ECTS per module or workshop, if the examinations are passed.

An on-line level assessment test, FLE 7, is organised to determine the standard of each student in terms of written understanding, grammatical structures and oral understanding to create groups per level.

N.B.: Students holding a diploma (DELF, DALF, etc.) or a test (TCF, TEF) are not required to take this assessment. These students may contact the LANSAD (LANgues pour Spécialistes D'Autres Modules - Languages for specialists in other subject areas) department directly, with their diploma or test certificate.

Social and medical coverage

Social security coverage for students

In France, independent social coverage is mandatory for all adult students. Social security coverage for students only applies for students aged under 28*.

All international students may benefit from this coverage, regardless of their nationality. 2 social security agencies exist for students:

- La Mutuelle des Etudiants (LMDE) throughout France : www.lmde.fr
- La Société Mutualiste des Etudiants de la Région Parisienne (SMEREP): www.smerep.fr

2 types of social coverage exist:

- basic coverage, which reimburses 70% of medical costs
- additional coverage (mutuelle), which completes the basic coverage with an extra 25% or 30%.

The two social security agencies for students can also provide additional coverage. This additional coverage is not mandatory, but is strongly recommended (particularly if hospitalisation is necessary).

^{*} except for doctorate students, who may benefit from social security for students up to the age of 32.

Important!

Grant applications must be made early.
For example, applications for Eiffel scholarships (Egide) must be received in November for the following academic year

You may benefit from a student grant to finance your mobility plans. You must contact the competent authorities in your country for this purpose: ministry, university, etc. Several types of grants have been created to assist with financing your studies in France:

- Excellence scholarships allocated by the French government (e.g.: the Eiffel scholarships by Egide)
- Grants assigned by local authorities (e.g.: lle de France masters grants)
- Grants accorded by international or non-governmental organisations (e.g.: Agence Universitaire de la Francophonie - AUF)

CampusFrance, the French agency for the promotion of French higher education abroad, lists all of the financing programmes available for foreign students.

Grants from the French government

+ information :

www.diplomatie.gouv.fr

Grants from the French government intended for foreign students are mainly assigned by the Ministry of foreign and European Affairs. These grants back up priority training points, corresponding to the needs expressed by foreign governments. They mainly target doctorate and post-doctorate students.

Applicants are selected on the basis of academic criteria and not social criteria. In France, you will be considered as a student receiving a grant from the French government, which has its own benefits. You will not be required to pay a registration fee at the University, nor to register with social security for students. For more information on the grants available in your country, contact the cultural action and cooperation service of the French embassy in your country.

Specific programmes

• Grants by the Agence Universitaire de la Francophonie (AUF)

The AUF finances French-speaking students and researchers within its network of member/partner establishments. The AUF has 658 member institutions in 74 countries within the international French-speaking organisation and beyond. These grants are intended for masters or doctorate students.

Ile de France masters grants

The region of Ile-de-France awards student grants to students of 16 nationalities, with priority accorded to the different areas of decentralised cooperation or university/scientific cooperation for the region (Argentina, South Africa, Brazil, Canada, Chile, Hungary, India, Lebanon, Madagascar, Mali, Morocco, Mauritania, Poland, Russia, Senegal and Vietnam). Since 2008, this scope has been extended to all students from European countries. This programme targets students wishing to take a master's degree.

Grants awarded by the French Ministry of National Education

+ information :

www.crous.fr

The grants accorded by the CROUS (National Student services) on the basis of social criteria are mainly awarded to French students. They may however be accorded to students who are nationals of a country in the European Union or the European Economic Area.

To be eligible for these grants based on social criteria, you must have spent one year studying or working in France (student card or employment contract for the previous year) or one of your parents or legal guardian must have received income in France.

Foreign students (non-EU) having resided in France for 2 years or more, and with their main residence for taxation purposes (father, mother or legal guardian) located in France for the previous 2 years or more, may also apply for these grants.

Student grant applications may be submitted on-line using the CROUS web site.

Working in France

Legislation

Since 1 July 2007, a foreign student can be recruited simply by showing his or her current temporary student residence permit, or by showing proof of a request to renew this permit. Students may work up to 60% of the annual legal duration of work, i.e. 964 hours per year.

It is therefore no longer necessary to obtain a Temporary Work Permit to work on a part-time basis while studying (except Algerian students whose status is still subject to the French-Algerian Agreement of 27 December 1968, doctorate students, interns, temporary teachers and researchers and those with paid research contracts).

Working in France

Prior declaration of an employee:

CONTACT:

PREFPOL.DPG-SDAE-6B-DECLAR-PREALABLE-ETUDIANT@interieur.gouv.fr

Important!

to declare the recruitment of a foreign student to the Préfecture de Police de Paris is an offence. In the same way, foreign students failing to comply with the legal duration of work may have their residence permits withdrawn by the Prefecture.

Employers planning to recruit a foreign student must submit the following items to the Prefecture having issued the residence permit to the student in question 48 hours before the date of effect of the employment contract:

- the name of the company or the full name and address of the employer, the business register number of the company and the sites or, should this not be possible, the social security number indicated for the payment of contributions;
- the full name, nationality, date and place of birth of the employee and the number of his or her residence permit;
- the type of employment, duration of the contract, number of hours worked annually and the date of recruitment;
- a photocopy of the residence permit shown by the employee.

Job vacancies

You can find job vacancies in interim agencies or on some small ad sites. We particularly recommend the following agencies, which have vacancies that are suitable for students:

Types of accommodation

Finding accommodation in and around Paris is very difficult. Université Paris Diderot has no university halls on the campus. For this reason, we strongly advise that you find accommodation in or near to Paris well before arriving in France. The following types of accommodation are suitable for students:

Youth hostels

You could stay at a youth hostel for a few days until you find more long-term accommodation. Long-term accommodation options are limited depending on the availability of the structures.

CROUS halls

University halls are managed by the CROUS (National Student Services Agency). The International relations' office (BRI) has a few rooms, however numbers are very limited. For this reason, not all applications will be accepted. Priority will be accorded to:

- students on the ERASMUS European exchange programme
- students benefitting from bilateral agreements with countries selected as priority countries by the University for International relations.

Renting accommodation: procedures and formalities

Before renting a room, bedsit or flat, you must complete some administrative formalities which are binding for both the tenant and the owner. You must conclude a lease. You will be required to provide a guarantee or deposit and proof of insurance.

The lease: you must sign a lease when renting property. Leases generally have a duration of one year. If you wish to leave your accommodation before the expiry of the lease, you must give three months' notice. Should this notice not be provided, the owner may retain all or part of your deposit (see below).

The deposit or guarantee: this amount will be equivalent to one month of rent and must generally be paid when you sign a lease. This amount will be returned to you when you leave the accommodation, unless you have damaged the accommodation or not given due notice.

Guarantor: in most cases, the owner, whether private or an institution, will request a guarantor, i.e. an individual (relative or friend) or an entity (agency, association, etc), providing a written commitment to pay the rent should you fail to do so. The guarantor must be able to provide proof of monthly income equal to three, or even four, times the rent. Should you fail to provide a guarantor, you must be able to provide proof of this level of income yourself, or pay the rent for the year in full in advance. In some university centres, systems exist allowing students to benefit from the commitment of a bank, institution or local authority as a guarantor. Conditions apply.

Insurance: as a tenant, you must take out comprehensive contents insurance covering fire, water damage, theft, etc..

Council tax: all tenants having signed a lease with a duration of one year or more must pay council tax each year. The amount of this tax may be as much as two months of rent. You may contact the tax office of your place of residence to obtain information on possible rebates.

Housing benefit

Depending on the type of accommodation selected and your family situation, you may be entitled to housing benefit. This benefit is accorded by the Caisse d'Allocations Familiales (CAF). Conditions apply.

Aide personnalisée au logement (APL)

The APL may be accorded to students, whether employed or not, living in accommodation subject to government management (e.g. council housing).

The amount of the benefit is paid directly to the owner and deducted from the rent.

This benefit may be as high as around 228 EUR.

Allocation de logement social (ALS)

The ALS varies for students, from 15 to 168 EUR per month. The lease must be in the name of the tenant student and the accommodation must meet specific standards in terms of comfort and surface area. You must submit an application immediately after moving into the accommodation, halls or hostel.

You cannot receive both the APL and the ALS and conditions apply:

- low income
- the accommodation must meet minimum standards in terms of comfort and surface area (9 m2 minimum per person)
- you must hold a current residence permit (except for nationals from the members of the European Union, the European Economic Area and Switzerland).

CONTACT:

Caisse d'Allocation Familiale (CAF) www.caf.fr ② 08 20 25 75 10

N.B.: If you share a flat with several people, each tenant must submit an individual application and the amount of the benefit will be calculated on the basis of his or her income and share of the rent.

Important!

All tenants must sign the lease.

Routine expenses

Before leaving your country, you must establish a precise budget for your expenses in France. In France, the minimum wage is equal to 8.86 EUR/hour, i.e. 1343.77 EUR gross per month on the basis of the legal working week of 35 hours. This level of income is supposed to cover essential requirements.

This is particularly necessary in Ile-de-France, where the cost of living is relatively high. Paris is one of the most expensive towns in the eurozone, particularly for rent. Don't forget to consider other miscellaneous expenses such as equipping your accommodation or contents insurance.

Student status will however allow you to obtain reduced rates at cinemas, theatres and museums and access university halls and restaurants.

In Paris, you need to plan for a monthly budget of approximately 1,000 EUR to live decently.

University restaurants

You can access all university restaurants in the region thanks to your student card. Prices in these restaurants are known to be unbeatable. A full meal (main course and two extras - starter, cheese, dessert, etc.) costs 3 euros.

Some restaurants are open on evenings, weekends and during university holidays.
