

Applications open for September 2018!

The Structured PhD in TESOL at the University of Limerick is the first of its kind in Ireland and has been designed as an expansion from the highly successful MA in TESOL (formerly MA in English Language Teaching) that has been running at UL since 2001. The programme is specifically designed for experienced English Language teachers, practitioners and researchers working in International contexts. It is a four-year programme which caters to students' varying interests, experience and needs.
